The Kentucky Senate did well Friday in passing a bill making the second conviction for pistol "toting" a felony and punishable by a sentence of from one to five years in the penitentiary. The day previous the representative from Bell county introduced in the House a bill making pistol "toting" and "bootlegging" a felony, and we trust that the Legislature, having acted favorably upon one of these measures, will also pass the other. The present statute against "bootlegging" does not fit the crime and sent to jail for ten days. His business is profitable, and he is caught upon such a very small per cent of sales that it ordinarily is an easy matter for him to pay the fine, and his continuous and brazen violation of the law have robbed him of self-respect to such an extent that he does not feel a tinge of shame in going to jail To many, it means free board for ten days, the only disturbing feafure being that his illicit traffic cannot be carried on during the confinement. The present statutory punishment for 'bootlegging" is not severe enough to have a deterrent effect. When the sentence is completed and the fine is paid the mongrels go back to their dirty work, and perhaps operate for 6 months without being caught again. Every self-respecting citizen, whether he is in favor of prohibition or the open saloon, wants the majesty of the law to be supreme, and the only way to stamp out "bootlegging" is to make it a penitentiary offense upon the second or third conviction.-Elizabethtown News.

CHEAP COLONY HOUSE PLANS

Ideas Taken From Various Experimental Station Bulletins for Most Economical Structure.

Below is given the plan of a colony house that is adapted from plans shown by the various experimental station bulletins.

This plan shows what is probably the most economical house that can possibly be built and is useful to the average farmer for several reasons. The house is eight feet square and the plan shows one end of it. For the ground covered and the space available, this plan requires less lumber than any good colony house that we have ever seen.

The front, rear, roof and sides are all built of tongue and groove stuff six inches wide, and the entire house is covered with a good grade of heavy roofing paper, thus making it as warm a place as is necessary in the severest of weather. It is built on two-inch by three-inch runners so that it may be moved around the farm from place to place as desired.

It will accommodate from 25 to 50 growing pullets, depending on their size, and may be used to hold about 15 layers in the winter. It may also be used to house about the same number in the spring, when it is desired to group the best birds of the entire flock so that they may be used

The measure provides that instead of 25 per cent. of the voters of each precinct being necessary to call an election, 25 per cent. of the voters of the county as a whole are required. The Frost measure is scheduled to pass both Houses without delay in the opinion of those interested.

The Sooner The Better.

Without a dissenting vote the Kenucky Senate passed the Arnett bill as mended by the committee, fixing a drastic punishment for the carrying of concealed deadly weapons.

Under the provisions of the measure a first conviction carries with it disfranchisement for two years, besides a fine of from $10 to $100 and a jail sentence of ten to forty days. The penalty upon No. a second conviction is confinement in the penitentiary of from one to five years. The amendment by the committee provides a fine of from $10 to $50 No. for the circuit clerk or sheriff who fails or refuses to issue a capias or execute No..

We hope to see this bill not only pass the House, but that no Representative No. 4. Beattyville to Louisville will feel called upon to vote against "it. The "pistol toting" habit in Kentucky No. 32. Jacksonville to Cincinnation should be stopped, and the Arnett measure appears drastic enough to put a stop No's 2, 3, 31, 37, 33, 27, 34, 28, 38. to the cowardly practice. Hundreds of nrurders in this State would never have occurred had a law similar to the one just passed by the Senate been on the statute books. The sooner it becomes the law of the State the better it will be for the good name of Kentucky -Bowling Green Times Journal.

A Trip to Frankfort.

Recently I left Richmond on the I &A. train for a visit to Frankfort. The sun shone brightly; everybody and every thing seemed to feel its influence and as we went on our way, good cheer was everywhere. The grass seemed to reach up to kiss the morning sun. The cattle. the hogs and birds all seemed to know and to fee! that the sun was shining.

He meets all callers on the Governor with ease and grace and when asked a question he has a pleasant way of saying 'yes" and a more pleasant way of saying "no," Farris soon had me in the Governor's room. I found him looking well; not a wrinkle in his face. The burdens of his office do not seem to worry him, and were he an older man, I would fear the result. He feels that his past services and his experience in the honorable positions he has filled entitle him to the consideration of the people in his race for U. S. Senator I found that those around him, including the Secretary of State, seem to be getting along smoothly and were pleased with the positions they held and were trying to do their best. Farris is the only one who ever crosses his path and it was whispered to me that when a good-looking widow, with shining qualities, called on the Governor that somehow or other Farris would get to show her the Governor's new mansion and if she in any way intimated that she was pleased with the Governor and would like to be the lady of that splendid building, Farris would most politely inform her that he would be pleased to take charge of her affairs. George, you must not do this: give the Governor a fair chance and square deal.

I had the pleasure of taking luncheon with the Governor and his smart, attractive and excellent housekeeper. I was shown through the building and I could not find a fault or a mistake. It is kept with good taste and judgment and it does great credit to the man who

Our capitol building is a work of art and a thing of beauty. I could spend a week in it and still find much to admire and to praise. It is a splendid monument to the liberality of our people and to those who worked and voted for its erection. The rising and the setting sun does not shine upon a more beautiful building. Every man and woman in the State over 20 years of age should take a trip to Frankfort and go through this building. It will help you to see it and you will find that we are a great and generous people, and you will give planned and the hands that toiled to erect it-this magnificent State house.

I found the "pen" in good order; the prisoners seemed satisfied and the Warden was doing his best to make them comfortable and contented. He informed me that there were about 1,400 within the walls, and to my great regret he said that 43 of them were women.

I was informed that the office of the State Banking Commissioner had been well managed and that the revenue arising from same had defrayed the expenses of the office. I did not have the pleasure of being in his office. but I had an invitation from his better half to take luncheon with them, but something intervened and I did not get to break bread

I left Frankfort feeling and believing that our people need not fear that our iii Now legislative body would pass any foolish or drastic measures, and that they would give due consideration to the interests ness House.

Mr. R. C. H. Covington has bought the interest of his partner, the late Ben Banks, in the firm of Covington & Banks, the Main street dealers in clothing and gents' furnishings in all its various branches, and will continue the business at the same stand. Mr. Covington begun business in the same house more than 25 years ago. In Jan'y, 1888, he and Mr. E E. Mitchell, under the firm name of Covington & Mitchell, founded the business. Four years later, in the fall of 1892, Mr. Mitchell disposed of his interest to Mr. Covington and went West. Returning in Jan., 1894, he repurchased the interest he had sold to Mr. Covington. The firm then continued as Covington & Mitchell until the death of the latter, Dec. 2, 1899. After winding up the business of the firm, Mr. Covington again took over the Mitchell interest and on Jan. 1, 1901, sold half interest to Ben L. Banks and the firm became Covington & Banks and so remained until Monday last, when Mr. Covington bought from the Banks heirs their interest and again became sole owner. In the 25 years Mr. Covington has always been the head of the house and shaped its business policy. His policy has always been to keep a complete stock in every department and to sell as low as consistent with good business judgment. The idea being large sales price;" no jewing, no cutting, except when a "cut" sale was put on and duly advertised, the humblest and the most influential man in the county being treated exactly alike. The most inexperienced clerk was authorized to sell at just the same price as the proprietors. Mr. Covington is a firm believer in "printer's ink" and has always advertised extensively and judiciously and with telling effect. The house has always done a fine business, the year just closed hav-ing been the best in its history. The Bowling Green, after a pleasant visit to new firm will incorporate under the name of The R. C. H. Covington Co. All the young men in the house will take such amount of stock as they are able to carry, Mr. Covington allowing them to pay for same out of their earnings, just as they are able. Mr. Covington has always encouraged young men in economical, moral and business hab its and this move is in line with his idea

Faithfulness.

The following from the Shelby Record under the above caption contains & beautiful sentiment which should find a responsive echo in every human heart:

sickness falls on the heart, when the the world is dark and cheerless is the time to try true friendship They who turn from the scenes of distress betray their hypocricy and prove that interest only moves them. If you have a friend Whistle, And I'll Come to You who loves you, who has studied your interests and happiness, be sure to sustain him in adversity. Let him feel that his Oh, whistle, and I'll come to you my love was not thrown away. Real fidelity may be rare, but it exists-in the Oh, whistle, and I'll come to you my heart. They only deny its worth and power who never loved a friend or labor-Though father and mother and a' should ed to make a friend happy.

If We Only Understood.

If we knew the care and trials. Knew the efforts all in vain, And the bitter disappointment, Understood the loss and gain, Would the grim eternal roughness Seem, I wonder, just the same? Should we help where now we hinder! Should we pity where we blame?

Ah! we judge each other harshly, Knowing not life's hidden force, Knowing not the fount of action Is less turbid at its source; Seeing not amid the evil All the golden grains of good; And we'd love each other better If we only understood.

Could we judge all deeds by motives That surround each other's lives, See the naked heart and spirit, Know what spur the action gives, Often we would find it better, Parer than we judge we should; We should love each other better

COUGH TWO YEARS OLD

Strong vigorous men and women hardly ever catch cold; it's only when the system is run down and vitality low that colds and coughs get a foot-

Now isn't it reasonable that the right way to cure a cough is to build up your run down condition again? Mrs. D. A. McGee of Waycross, Ga., says: "I had a chronic cold and cough which kept me awake nights for two years and I felt tired all the time. Vinol cured my cough and I feel stronger in every way." The reason Vinol is so efficacious in such cases is because it contains in a delicious concentrated form all the medicinal curative elements of cod liver oil, with tonic, blood buildvig iron added.

Chronic coughs and colds yield to Vinol because it builds up the weakened, run-down system.

The Mahattan Nationalist doesn't tell where it found this: "There was a chap who owned a store and often wished it grander: he sold his goods to all who came; his name was Alexander He mixed the goods with cunning hand (he was a skilful blender), and since his sugar was half sand, they called him Alexander. He had a sweetheart (pretty maid); admiringly he scanned her, and asked if she'd enange her name; a ring did Alex hand her. 'Oh, yes,' she said, and sweetly smiled, 'if I can be commander.' And thus they formed a partnership; firm name was Alex & Her."

How to F'revent The Tobacco Spitworm.

Transplant the tobacco crop as early setbacks. is possible in order to mature it before the appearance of the most destructive generation of the tobacco splitworm, advises bulletin No. 59 of the Department of Agriculture, in making recommendation for the control of this worm. When the early infection is very severe, prime off and destroy the infected leaves; destroy all tobacco stubble as soon as the crop is harvested to prevent the breeding of a hibernating generation; clean up turage. and destroy all trash in and around fields and tobacco barns; do not follow potatoes by tobacco if the infection of to bacco has been more severe in such cases than where different rotation was followed; grow potatoes as far as possible from tobacco fields.

In Cuba and the United States the splitworm is known on tobacco as a leaf miner only. Only the older tobacco leaves are affected, unless the infection is very severe; and in these, the lower leaves, grayish, irregular blotches are produced, which later turn brown and become fragile so that the tobacco is unfit for wrappers. At Clarksville, Tenn., where the infection is very slight, the larva in most cases begins work in the 'ruffles" along the midrib and they afterwards migrate and form mines in various parts of the leaf.

RANDMA SMITH is a sprightly old lady who likes to keep in touch with things. In the next town lives another dear old lady who was Grandma's schoolmate, and of whom she is very fond. It is impossible for the two old ladies to do much visiting, but every day they call each other up on the telephone and have the most delightful chats.

No one gets more comfort and pleasure out of the family telephnoe than Grandma.

Richmond, Ky Story of The Contented Farmer.

In the current issue of Farm and Fireside a contributor tells, as follows, about a farmer who comes as near being a contented farmer as anyone he knows. Following is an extract:

"In south central New Hampshire, lives a farmer, his wife and three children, who are the nearest to being absolutely contented that we have yet discovered. We will not call them by name, but it is a real family and we have known them long and well enough to be sure of our ground in saying they are contented.

"The head of the family was formerly a storekeeper in a small town, later a carpenter, and for the last fifteen years has farmed. He and his wife are in a ripe middle age. The son, who married three years ago, lives in the next house, helps run the farm, and is still considered one of the family.
